Gina Loehr is a popular author and inspirational speaker, a wife and the mother of six young children. Her primary focus is on raising her children, but as family life permits, she enjoys traveling to share her passion and enthusiasm for the faith with audiences around the country. Gina holds a master's degree in theology from Franciscan University of Steubenville and a bachelor's degree in theatre studies. Her education and her unique conversion from "theatre" to "theology," along with her background as a catechetical missionary and retreat leader with NET Ministries, and several years of work in youth/young adult ministry and pro-life outreach equipped Gina for her writing and speaking career.
